

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. An improved display device substrate which is composed of a pair of glass sheets facing each other and a layer of plastics material interposed between said paired glass sheets, wherein said improvement comprises said glass sheets having an internal compressive strain.

2. The display device substrate as defined in Claim 1, wherein said glass sheets have an internal compressive strain ascribed to the layer of plastics material interposed between them.